

Discovered attack

A Discovered attack occurs when a piece moves and attacks one of the opponent pieces while revealing a hidden piece behind it that attacks the other piece. In this example you can see that now the bishop attacks the knight and the so far hidden rook comes into life and attacks the bishop. This is called Discovered attack. As mentioned earlier all these tactical themes will be discussed in depth in the future sessions.

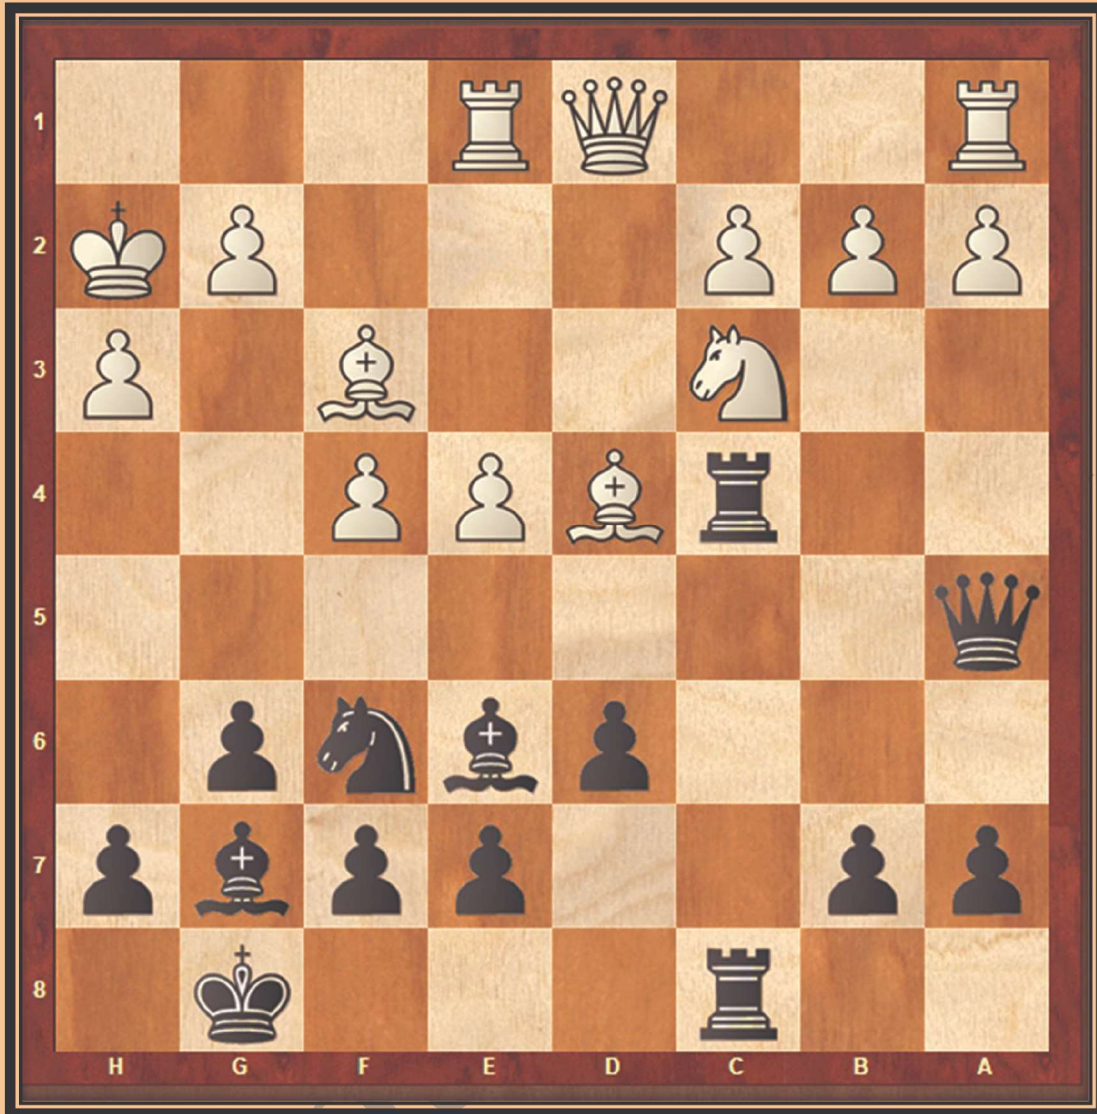

Solve the following puzzles

1. Setup the position on your board
2. Spot the placements of your pieces & then look for moving the piece who's stopping the way for the other piece and while moving can also attack the other enemy piece
3. Try to write the notations in the given box
4. Bolo Aal izz well !
